

American College of Pediatricians

www.ACPeds.org

Patient Information Handout

Protecting Your Children on the Internet

The internet has dramatically changed how most children interact with the world. Along with the benefits of the internet come significant potential risks to children including easy access to pornography, online predators, cyberbullying and exposure to material encouraging dangerous activities. Despite these risks, many parents neglect to set up parental controls and monitor their children's online activity. Many American teens report that their parents have no idea what they are doing online and a majority of teens admit to hiding their online behavior from their parents.

Being vigilant to put in place safeguards to help protect your children from internet dangers is an important responsibility. Although time-consuming, neglecting to do so may have very costly consequences for your children. If you are not willing to monitor internet use on a device (computer, tablet, or smartphone), then do not make that device available to your child, or disable its internet access. Start with internet safety when your children first start to do anything with the internet, and as they grow, strive to stay involved so you can help to train them to avoid dangers and use the internet responsibly.

INTERNET SAFEGUARD RECOMMENDATIONS

- Install internet filtering and/or monitoring software on internet-enabled devices to decrease the likelihood of inappropriate access (see page 4 for recommended options). This type of software is designed to block a device's access to inappropriate material and typically has settings to allow different levels of access for different family members. Consider a program that will also help you monitor your children's internet activity. Also, check out the parental control settings on your child's internet-enabled devices, where you can set parameters for features such as app installation and time limits. Use strong settings when your children are young and taper as your children mature.
- Continue to monitor and communicate with your child even after installing an internet filter as no filter will block all inappropriate material or prevent all internet dangers.
- Set ground rules about internet safety including instructions and consequences. Create an internet usage contract for tweens/teens with rules such as: parents know all passwords, child must get permission before downloading apps, no chat rooms, and only instant messaging/texting with people parents have approved.
- Confine internet use (including computers) to shared living areas (like the family living room or kitchen) so you can better monitor your children's online activity. No internet-enabled devices in the bedroom! Avoid letting children or young teens browse the internet without direct parental supervision. It is not uncommon for even a responsible or mature-seeming child or young teen to be viewing pornography or engaging in other potentially harmful or dangerous activities if they are using the internet unsupervised.

This document is provided for educational use only and is not intended to be a substitute for consultation with a physician concerning the issues presented. The information contained within this document has been submitted by an ACPeds member and approved by the Board of Directors for distribution, but has not been formally endorsed or validated by the American College of Pediatricians. Reproduction of this document is permitted.

AMERICAN COLLEGE OF PEDIATRICIANS® 2020

- Password-protect your home WiFi through your Internet modem or router.
- Social Media sites have privacy features that you should review and set before your children use the sites. Configure the privacy settings on your children’s social networking accounts so that their photos and information are only accessible to people they know. Also, keep in mind that according to the Children Online Privacy Protection Act, children under 13 years old are not allowed to have profiles or accounts on social media platforms such as Facebook or Instagram.
- Communicate with your children often about being safe and wise on the internet. Take time to surf the internet with your children and dialogue with them. Discuss not sharing personal information and what to do if someone asks to meet them face-to-face. Make your children aware that dangerous people may pose as youth online or otherwise misrepresent themselves. Ask them to share with you if they encounter something that makes them uncomfortable. Report any suspicious activity to the National Center for Missing and Exploited Children at their CyberTipline at 1-800-843-5678 (1-800-THE-LOST).
- Know your children’s usernames and passwords. Be your children’s “friend” or follower on social media. On at least a weekly basis, review their social networking posts, status updates, downloads, music, blogs, etc and discuss the content with your children. Keep in mind that some young people will create secret social media accounts to avoid parental oversight. If your children are making poor choices, use the situation for a learning opportunity or impose consequences to help train your children.
- Communicate with parents of your children’s friends about their internet safety standards before allowing your children to spend time at their homes. Many children are exposed to harmful aspects of the internet at friend’s homes. Also, familiarize yourself with internet safety standards at your children’s schools.
- Ask for help from someone tech-savvy if you are having difficulty figuring out how to implement internet safeguards for your children. Motivated teens can often find ways to circumvent internet boundaries, so try to educate yourself on how to prevent this.
- Begin early teaching your children a healthy view of sexuality and continue the dialogue as your children grow about healthy relationship practices (both online and offline).

INTERNET LIMITS

- Excessive time spent on the internet is not healthy for the overall well-being of our children, may impair interpersonal skills, and may lead to unrealistic relationship realities. Some youth today are truly addicted to social media, online gaming, or other apps.
- Parents can help prevent internet addiction by enforcing internet limits from early ages and actively encouraging other real-life activities that help develop crucial interpersonal skills for success in life. Watch for signs of addiction such as your children becoming agitated when they are denied access to the Internet.
- Do not allow cell phones, tablets, or other internet-enabled devices in bedrooms, especially at night.
- Consider “unplugging” the whole family from screens periodically.
- Limit your own use of digital media to set a good example, including turning off smartphones and computers during family meals. Avoid texting while driving.

PORNOGRAPHY & THE INTERNET (statistics from covenanteyes.com)

- Internet pornography viewing by children and teens is extremely common. First exposure to pornography comes at an average age of 12 years for boys. By age 18 years, 90% of boys and 60% of girls have been exposed to porn.
- Percentages of American youth who have viewed specific types of pornography online:
 - Group Sex: 83% of boys, 57% of girls
 - Sexual Bondage: 39% of boys, 23% of girls
 - Bestiality: 32% of boys, 18% of girls

This document is provided for educational use only and is not intended to be a substitute for consultation with a physician concerning the issues presented. The information contained within this document has been submitted by an ACPeds member and approved by the Board of Directors for distribution, but has not been formally endorsed or validated by the American College of Pediatricians. Reproduction of this document is permitted.

AMERICAN COLLEGE OF PEDIATRICIANS® 2020

- Same-Sex Intercourse: 69% of boys, 55% of girls
- Porn use by youth is a risk factor for oral sex and intercourse at a young age.
- Pornography can be highly addictive and exposure at any early age is a risk factor for addiction and hard core porn use. Pornography is extremely addictive because the brain releases powerful hormones and neurochemicals that give a quick buzz when pornography is viewed. As with other addictive “drugs,” the brain develops a tolerance over time and then harder core porn is needed to get the same “fix.”
- Start talking with your children in the preteen years about the dangers of pornography and keep the conversation going through the teen years and beyond. Warn your children about the addictiveness of porn and how it can ruin their lives.
- Major Harms of Pornography:
 - Creates a preference for the quick fix from pornography over fostering meaningful relationships with real people
 - Interferes with a fulfilling marriage relationship
 - Society-wide: promotes adultery, prostitution, sexual abuse, and sex trafficking

INTERNET BULLYING

- Internet bullying (“cyber bullying”) is common and can have serious consequences. Examples of online bullying include making false accusations online, posting hurtful or threatening comments and public sharing of personal information or images.
- Over half of today’s adolescents state they have been bullied online and over 25 percent of adolescents state they have been bullied repeatedly through the internet. However, only 1 in 10 teens will tell a parent about the bullying (from bullyingstatistics.org).
- Sadly, some victims of cyber bullying resort to suicide to escape the embarrassment. Scientific studies find a definite relationship between cyberbullying and suicidal ideation and behavior.

SEXTING

- Many teens and tweens text nude or otherwise sexually provocative pictures or videos of themselves from their mobile phones, which is known as “sexting.” These images are often shared with more people than just the intended recipient.
- Police consider this activity the “creation and distribution of child pornography,” which is a felony.

LIVE STREAMING

- Be aware of apps that allow for instant live streaming (video broadcasting) of daily activities. These apps include Meerkat, Periscope, YouNow, and Twitch, and over 100 million people around the world currently access YouNow. Many teens are broadcasting from their bedrooms, including leaving their cell phones on to broadcast while they are sleeping. Talk with your child regarding safety and privacy concerns, especially related to live streaming.

RECOMMENDED INTERNET PARENTAL CONTROLS

- Bark Parental Controls
 - Bark Jr.- manage screen time + locks in SafeSearch
 - “Full Bark”- good for monitoring social media (+ features from Bark Jr.)
- Clean Browsing DNS - free porn blocking on computers and other devices
- Boomerang - for mobile devices
- Gryphon - router based

This document is provided for educational use only and is not intended to be a substitute for consultation with a physician concerning the issues presented. The information contained within this document has been submitted by an ACPeds member and approved by the Board of Directors for distribution, but has not been formally endorsed or validated by the American College of Pediatricians. Reproduction of this document is permitted.

AMERICAN COLLEGE OF PEDIATRICIANS® 2020

- Covenant Eyes- especially helpful for porn problems
- Screen Time - for iOS devices
- Family Link - for Android or Chromebook

See <https://protectyoungeyes.com/parental-controls-we-recommend> for more options and details

RECOMMENDED READING ON INTERNET SAFETY

- Growing Up Social: Raising Relational Kids in a Screen-Driven World by Gary Chapman and Arlene Pellicane
- Protecting Your Family Online: A Parent's How-To Guide, free downloadable book from CovenantEyes.com
- Selfie: A Parent's Guide to Social Media by Tommy McGregor
- The Digital Invasion: How Technology is Shaping You and Your Relationships by Drs. A. Hart and S. Frejd
- www.netSMARTZ.org/InternetSafety
- www.safekids.com/kids-rules-for-online-safety/
- www.internetsafety101.org
- <http://www.fbi.gov/publications/pguide/pguidee.htm> (parent's guide to Internet Safety from the FBI)
- <https://sos.fbi.gov/> (interactive website, "Safe online surfing," to teach 3rd – 8th graders Internet safety)

RESOURCES ON PORNOGRAPHY

- When Your Child is Looking at Porn, free download from CovenantEyes.com
- When Your Teen is Looking at Porn, free download from CovenantEyes.com
- Conquer Series - DVD course, conquerseries.com
- Somebody's Daughter: A Journey to Freedom from Pornography, directed by John Evans, DVD
- Every Young Man's Battle: Strategies for Victory in the Real World of Sexual Temptation by Stephen Arterburn
- "Matt Fradd: 10 Myths About Pornography" on YouTube
- FBI – A Parent's Guide to Internet Safety: <https://www2.fbi.gov/publications/pguide/pguide.htm>

For more information visit www.acpeds.org